Not illustrated. 1901 Excerpt: .the advantage of using railroads for transporting timber in localities where it was not possible to drive the logs and timber to the desire point for manufacture, and there are now several timber tracts in northern New York where all the logs are taken out by rail. Ho ver, it is an unquestioned fact that water furnishes the cheapest powe for moving timber, as each time the logs are handled separately, in loading and unloading, adds to their cost, and the cost of transportation by rail almost invariably exceeds that of log-driving. The use of the railroad makes it possible to get out hardwood timber, which otherwise could not be utilized because the logs are too heavy to he floated down the stream and would sink. The hardwoods--birch, maple, Beech, ash, and cherry--constitute, on an average, over 65 per cent of our northern forest. In the Catskills they form a still larger proportion. As this class of timber becomes accessible under the improved methods of logging the value of such timber lands is greatly enhanced, and this in turn will have a direct inliuence on the forest policy of the State. Hitherto the State has been purchasing forest lands at a lowlprice. lthe lnmhormen, after removing the small proportion of conifcrs, were willing to sell at a low ligure, because the remaining hardwoods could not be marketed and the taxes were burdensome. But new that the hardwoods as well as the others will probably be 0111...
